

Awards

During its forty-four years of practice Bohlin Cywinski Jackson has achieved an extraordinary record of design achievement. The firm is the recipient of eight national Honor Awards from the American Institute of Architects and has received more than 415 awards recognizing its design abilities.

This record of consistent achievement was recognized by the American Institute of Architects when it awarded Bohlin Cywinski Jackson the Architecture Firm Award.

This award is the highest honor the Institute bestows upon any architectural practice and recognizes the extraordinary quality and consistency of design achieved by the firm since its founding.

Further evidence of the regard for Bohlin Cywinski Jackson's work is provided by the frequent publication of the firm's projects in professional journals worldwide. In 1994 a monograph on the firm's work was published by the AIA Press. In 1999 a book devoted to a single project, the Ledge House, was published and in 2005, Arcadian Architecture: Bohlin Cywinski Jackson, 12 Houses was released. It is the first of a three-volume series on the work of the practice. In 2007 two monographs, Liberty Bell Center and Farrar Residence were published. In 2009 Grand Teton: A National Park Building about the Discovery and Visitors Center at Grand Teton National Park was published.
